Disruptive Student Behaviors

National Center for Education Statistics, June 2022

More than 80% of public schools within the U.S report the pandemic has negatively impacted student behavior and socio-emotional development.

So... students are stressed out; teachers are burned out; and disruptive behaviors are on the rise.
No wonder your days as a school administrator often feel like one giant game of whack-a-mole!

Ready to move beyond simply putting out fires?!

According to Ohio's Department of Education & Workforce, "Studies from the National Alliance on Mental Illness and the National Research Council have shown that effective comprehensive school mental health systems contribute to improved student and school outcomes including":

- Greater academic success
- Reduced absenteeism
- Decreased behavioral concerns
- Improved school climate
- Improved academic outcomes

And yet...the CDC estimates that "only 20% of youth with mental, emotional or behavioral disorders receive care from a specialized mental healthcare provider."

Last year, MindPeace's Network of 200+ schools within 24 school districts achieved an access-to-care rate of 72%.
